October is gone, Welcome November!

Are the months getting shorter? I know the weeks are. Where is the time going? Maybe it's because I have been busy, trying to quilt something for everyone, but I can't seem to keep up.

To update you on the latest, the wedding went well. The bride was gorgeous, her Mama didn't cry. The ceremony was held in the chapel, not outdoors. Yes, it rained! Fifty-five of the invited 85 attended and they partied. It was a fun time and now they are married. I don't have photos yet so can't share with you at this time.

Not everything is back in place at the correct house, but life goes on. I took a few days off and immediately got back into the swing of being chapter leader as the phone began to ring. Three fabric donations which were all sizable and wonderful fabrics. I have organized it all and tried to straighten my sewing room. We will be chunking more kits mid-November so get ready to sign out some of the new kits if you have time to help us before Christmas. If not, we have it covered.

Hopefully our workshops will begin in 2021. I miss seeing everyone and hearing your stories about quilting and family. Hope that everyone is being safe and staying healthy. It has truly been a year for the record books. I never would have believed that we'd be wearing masks everywhere we go-if we go. So many have not ventured out and I feel proud for them and also sorry that they have been so isolated. I've been lucky or blessed and have not caught even a sniffle.

As for finding someone to work on the scrappy quilts, several ladies have volunteered and I have given them scraps to start working on. It will be interesting to see what beauties they create. Thanks to Vicky S., Debra C. and Carol J. for volunteering.

The Boo Crew did not go to Northeast Georgia Medical Center this Halloween for several reasons. I didn't ask, there's not many kids there and I didn't want to impose on the Crew to take the risk. However, I did deliver several Halloween themed quilts to the pediatric floor for them to give out. Surely I'll hear about that from the nurses, later.

As we enter the Holiday Season, please know that I am grateful for each of you and thankful for all you do to help kids in our community. Quilters are the most generous people as I have found. I hope that you enjoy the holidays and spend time with loved ones.
